

Where to Spot a Celebrity During Miami Art Week

Miami Art Week 2015, the encompassing moniker of Art Basel Miami Beach and its rampant area-wide event spawn, is upon us. Everyone from the culturally astute to the fleetingly boisterous is flocking into town, which includes some headlining celebrities and socialites.

We know where you're going to be, but where will the famous faces be during December's week-long, artistically excused indulgences? We've tallied up past Basel visits, recent celebrity sightings, and the "hush hush" rumor mill to give Racked readers a chance rub elbows with, party alongside, or just simply awe at a few notable names.

7 Casa Tua

The infamously private Casa Tua is a social celebrity and millionaire's enclave. Lenny Kravitz is a known regular, and he may stop by considering his ongoing photography exhibit. Eva Longoria tweeted from outside the venue in late November and is slated to host an exclusive event there for Ricardo Barroso Interiors. Longoria will also be in town to honor Jorge Pérez alongside pal and Miami regular, Ricky Martin at 1400 Biscayne on Thursday evening.

Art Basel CELEBS Start The Party Early!

November 28, 2015 by Vada Mossavat — 2 Comments

MIAMI BEACH — It's that time of year: The art world and a bustle of celebrities are set to descend on our southern shores for the uber in-crowd love-fest Art Basel.

But this time around, the biggest celebrities can't even wait for the actual event, which runs Dec. 3 to Dec. 6.

They're starting their parties early.

Maybe they should rename it pARTy Basel?

Unless you're a super cool kid, you may not be able to get into most of these parties.

But then Art Basel is actually supposed to be about the art, now isn't it?

On Basel's opening day, Dec. 3, Eva Longoria will co-host the launch of Ricardo Barroso Interiors at Casa Tua.

'Telenovela' stars ready for their close-up

Canela and Longoria NBC - Jordín Althaus/NBC

BY MADELEINE MARR

Jencarlos Canela is ready for prime time.

The Hialeah native is headlining the upcoming NBC workplace comedy Telenovela, as Eva Longoria's ex husband and ego-driven costar. It officially premieres at 10 p.m. Jan. 4, but a two-episode preview aired Monday night.

Canela knows a thing or two about telenovelas, with such Spanish-language soaps as Más Sabe el Diablo, Mi Corazón Insiste and Pasión Prohibida on his résumé.

You could say the 27-year-old, who doubles as a pop singer (Bajito), is proud of his crossover success.

"I want everyone to realize the importance of a series like this one," he said Friday from Marlins Park during rehearsals for the Grand Slam Party Latino concert. "It's in English, with a Spanish title, and all of the cast members are either Latino or of Latino heritage."

Like Longoria. The actress was born in Corpus Christi, Texas, and is a ninth-generation American of Mexican descent. But, like her Telenovela character — aging diva Ana Sofía Calderon — she has a poor command of the Spanish language.

"It's not good, even though I wish it were," admitted Longoria on Thursday from the launch of The Global Gift Initiative: Miami, assisting local women in their careers, at Auberge Residences & Spa downtown sales office. "Believe me. I don't even speak Spanglish!"

Working with the former Desperate Housewives star was a learning experience for Canela.

"Eva is one of the smartest people I have ever met in my life and one of the most prepared," said the actor of the 40-year-old.

One thing we can definitely learn from Longoria — how to pull together an outfit.

The ravishing brunette was flawless in a lace cutout olive dress, not one hair out of place, not one lash smudged, despite the inclement weather. A few hours earlier, the humidity resistant star appeared at Casa Tua in Miami Beach for the launch of interior designer Ricardo Barroso's photographic memoir, Ricardo Barroso Interiors, in a different ensemble — an emerald pantsuit with plunging neckline.

Longoria said it was all in the color.

"My stylist is telling me I should wear more green. What do you think?"

Every year, when Miami Art Week rolls around, the locals get a little on edge – not just because of the increased difficulty in parking or the horrid traffic, but because of the onslaught of tourists visiting the city for those short seven days. However, along with the ordinary visitors comes the crop of celebrities. Last week, during Art Basel 2015, Miami saw a bevy of famous faces. Whether they were here for the art, the parties, or the weather, these celebs still managed to smile for the camera.

What a life. In between Baseling like a boss, Gabrielle Union managed to squeeze in some retail therapy. On Saturday, the actress took a break from the endless rain and gallery hopping to browse the Calypso St. Barth Art Basel Pop Up at Soho Beach House, shopping

VELVET UNDERGROUND

Taking Stock

Leidy Abravanel

So now that the locals have taken back their city — sort of — from the brigade of Baselites who stormed down here last week, it's time to embrace the assets and take advantage before the second wave of invaders heads down for the holidays. Among those assets, Key Biscayne's Virginia Beach, which is the scenic spot for the 3rd Annual Woodstock Benefit Festival, starting at 2 p.m. Saturday. In addition to a food village and art (yep, we still have art!), there will be live performances by The Expendables, Cris Cab, Maxi Priest, Bachaco and Future Presidents. Tickets are $20 for general admission and $80 for VIP. Proceeds will benefit The Woody Foundation, which helps those with paralysis. To buy your tickets, go to www.woodstockmiami.org.

Hit-tilating

Giving the term whipped butter a completely different meaning is Tantalize Miami's "Fifty Shades of Grey" dinner party from 7 p.m. to 3 a.m. Saturday, where superstar chef Horacio Rivadero will create a menu to go with six choreographed costumed stage shows "to indulge the senses." The first show at Tantalize, 320 Lincoln Road, starts at 8:30 p.m., but you can eat before. We suggest waiting at least 30 minutes before doing anything else, if you know what we mean — cough. For reservations, call 305-695-1401 or go to www.opentable.com/tantalize.

All Jacked Up

Leave it to Jack Daniel's Tennessee Honey to wait for Art Basel to be over to throw its own homage to art with an event, Art, Beats and Lyrics, taking place at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Miami Backlot Studios, 342 NW 24th St., and featuring some of today's best up-and-coming artists and seasoned vets including Dubeluyo, Kazilla and Diana Contreras. The event will also feature appearances from a hip-hop star whose name has yet to be announced. The event is open to the public. Details are available at www.jackhoneyabl.com.

Pieces of Work

Miami absolutely has its fair share of comic book characters, but none as real as those in "The Adventures of Bibi & Friends," a South Beach staple since before the Kardashian and Jenner girls were even born. In celebration of the book's Miami Beach Centennial edition, author/artist Bibi Andrade is throwing a Paint Your Comic Character Party from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday at Painting With A Twist, 924 71st St., Miami Beach. The $45 cost includes a 16 x 20 canvas and an autographed comic book. If you're not in the book, fret not. You can paint your favorite Miami cartoon, be it a nightlife personality or a politician. Tempting, we know. Space is limited to 40, but if you're not painting, you can come and cocktail it up while critiquing the others' pieces of work, on canvas or otherwise. To reserve your spot, call 786-352-8511 or go to www.paintingwithatwist.com.

Art Basel Miami Beach is a bit like a Bond villain.

Just when you think the novelty has worn off, it returns, each December, stronger, with more events, more launches, more boldface names, more pop-ups and more people.

Among the celebrities who already have been bandied about this year: Rita Ora, who will perform at the unveiling of a Perrier-Jouët Champagne called L'Eden on Monday at the new Faena Hotel; Hilary Swank, who will host a party with DuJour magazine and BlackBerry Priv on Tuesday at the Delano; Ellie Goulding, who will launch her collaboration with MAC Cosmetics on Wednesday at the Miami Beach Edition; and Eva Longoria, who will throw a book party for the interior designer Ricardo Barroso on Thursday at the restaurant Casa Tua.

Eva Longoria flashes glimpse of cleavage in plunging green jumpsuit as she attends book launch in Miami

Style queen Eva Longoria brought her top sartorial game to a book launch in Miami, Florida, on Thursday evening.

The Desperate Housewives actress made guests green with envy as she flaunted her figure in an emerald-coloured jumpsuit on attending Ricardo Barroso's Interiors book launch at Casa Tua Restaurant.

Eva, 40, flashed a glimpse of her pert assets in the one-piece which was slashed from the neck to just above the navel.

The outfit was fitted around the waist, accentuating her hour-glass figure, while the legs were slightly flared and the arms sleeveless.

The pint-sized Telenovela star lifted her petite form with a pair of silver strap stilettos, exposing her perfectly pedicured toes.

Eva was made up in a glamorous fashion with her hair straightened and coiffed into a mid-high beehive.

She played the part of a sociable guest as posed with the guestlist - including her boyfriend Jose Antonio Baston and host Ricardo.
